VOLUME 1. MARYVILLE, MISSOURI, WEDNESDAY, MAY 10. 1911. NO. 286.

A FOURTH OF JULY

CELEBRATION TO BE HELD IN MARYVILLE THIS YEAR.

SO DECIDES THE CLUB

At a Meeting Held Tuesday Evening—Interest Taken in the "Saints' Highway."

The Commercial club at its meeting last night took an emphatic stand in favor of on old-time Fourth of July celebration on a big scale. The plan is to have numerous attractions, including speaking, sports, bands, and it is intended to make a special feature of a big gathering of automobiles from all parts of the county. An effort will be made to get together all the automobiles in Nodaway county, and a big demonstration will be made. Everybody should plan right now to take a day off on the Fourth and come to Maryville, for the business men of this city will undertake to give them the time of their lives on this day. They are going to forget business practically on this day and exert themselves to entertain the city's guests. Among the features of the day will be an old fashioned picnic on the Normal park grounds.

The matter of the "Saints' Highway" was brought up and discussed, and considerable progress and encouragement was reported. There is reason to believe that the road will be built, and it will be a great advantage to the county.

Several matters were discussed, all being in the direction of enlarging the inducements and increasing the attractions to buyers of Maryville goods wherever possible.

E. C. Curfman presided over the meeting, President Nick Sturm being out of the city.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Ford of the First M. E. church and Rev. Dr. Luce of the Presbyterian church were present and made pleasant and encouraging talks, commending the efforts of the members to make the city a better place to live and a better place to do busi-

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES WILL BE KEPT FINE

The Holmes Grocery company had a canvas topped window screen built in their large show window Saturday, where they can put all their fruits and vegetables on display hereafter without danger of their being molested dby a single bug or a fly. The windows may be kept bright and clean also, and it is altogether a fine improvement, one that the public will be benefited by. The fruit and vegetables can in this way be kept in a perfectly sanitary condition.

Andrews & Hempstead built one of these screens in their show window Tuesday, and it is likely the other grocery houses will follow suit, as it is about the only way fresh fruit and vegetables may be kept clean and away from the ravages of insects.

LEFT FOR CHICAGO TO ATTEND LECTURES

Dr. Leslie Dean of this city and Dr. J. Elmer Hughes of Shawnee, Okla., left Tuesday evening for Chicago to spend three weeks in the hospitals of Chicago and attending a special course of lectures by eminent medical men.

Dr. Hughes and his wife and little son, Horton, have been spending a week in the city with Dr. Hughes' mother, Mrs. J. M. Hughes. Mrs. Hughes will go to Chillicothe to make a visit, and will then go on to Caicago to meet Dr. Hughes and return to Shawnee from that city.

RECEIVED A CAR LOAD OF SEATS

The Crystal Theater company received a car load of seats from St. Louis today. About one thousand seats were in the shipment, which will be used in the new airdome on East Third street. About fifteen hundred more seats will be used, making the seating capacity 2,500. Work is progressing rapidly, and the new airdome is almost completed. The regular season will open May 29. A big free picture show and band concert will be given on the night of the 27th, when the public will be invited to come and enjoy the evening. Airdome theaters are the most popular form of amusement in the world today, and nearly every city of 2,500 or more has an airdome. The shows are clean and refined, the novelty of the outdoor performance, good pictures, and the real enjoyment afforded the working classes at such small expense has made the airdome a permanent feature throughout the entire country. Arrangements are being made to sell ice cream, sodas, candies, cigars, etc.

Presbyterian Society.

The Womans' Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church will meet in the church parlors Thursday afternoon, instead of at the home of Mrs. D. E. Hotchkin, as was announced.

A "SHAM" BATTLE WAS HELD TUESDAY EVE

BETWEEN THE BOYS OF MARYVILLE'S COMPANY.

In Robinson's Pasture—Are Planning a Sham Battle for the Fourth.

Residents of the west end of town last night thought that the insurrectos had carried their warfare to Nodaway county, and that an attack was being made on Maryville. It was only a "sham" battle between the boys of Company F, who are practicing up a little for Mexico later, which was held in Robinson's pasture.

Captain Cook acted as umpire, and had as a special bodyguard about one hnudred Boy Scouts, who carried messages and cared for the wounded. It happened in this way: Lieutenant Bennett, commanding the first platoon, left the armory at 8:20, with instructions to take up a defensive position in Robinson's pasture. Twenty minutes later Lieutenant Phipps, commanding the second platoon, was sent out to rout Bennett, and if possible capture the wagon train which he had with him. The Boy Scout brigade left about the same time and took a position on the hill, where they could see the entire battle. Lieutenant Bennett selected a position in an old orchard on the ridge of the hill, and Lieutenant Phipps marched down Buchanan street and deployed to the attack from the south and west, throwing out his skirmishers near the pond. Both sides were guessing, neither knowing at any time where the other was. Even the umpire was in the dark as to the whereabouts of the attacking force, and repeated efforts of the Boy Scouts to locate them were of no avail.

The pickets came together about 10:30, and the exchange of a few shots soon gave away the positions of the two forces. Lieutenant Phipps opened fire on his extreme left, which brought on a brisk engagement, and with his right attempted to flank the enemy on the left, which he did successfully, but not until the ammunition of the latter had been exhausted. Bennett was forced to retire from his position, but succeeded in getting away with his supplies, and retired in good order to the north, keeping up such an effective fire that the attacking force were unable to advance rapidly. Several thousand shots were fired and it was an interesting affair, both to the visitors and to the men who were engaged, as it illustrated to a fair degree the modern methods of attack and defense. Strange to say, there were no casualities, and the hospital corps was not needed.

The boys of Company F are planning on a big sham battle with Trenton or Tarkio on the Fourth of July, if the finance committee of the celebration can give them any encouragement.

DR. MC CASH LECTURE IN MARYVILLE

Dr. I. N. McCash of Cincinnati, O., secretary of the American Christian Church Missionary society, delivered a lecture in the First Christian church Tuesday night before a large audience. His subject was "Our Country," and dealt with our development and history from a religious viewpoint. Our population, he said, has increased 47 per cent in twenty years, and the churches 71 per cent. He gave facts and figures that proved we need a lot done to this country in the way of missionary work before we need to be looking into the foreign field.

Dr. McCash was pastor of the Christian church in this city about sixteen years ago. He left her and went to Des Moines, later to Cincinnati, and has grown to be one of the elading ministers of his denomination.

The territory of his present work includes the United States, Canada and Alaska. On the Fourth of July he will address the national convention at Portland, Ore.

He has many friends here, regardless of church affiliation, who will always be glad to see him, and who are proud of his advancement.

Why It is Good.

"What makes the milk from the White Cloud dairy so good?" asks a customer. Boyer & Son, the proprietors, answer this by saying that their cows are all Jerseys, and every cow is free from any taint of tuberculosis, having been carefully examined by a competent veterinarian. The milk is put up in sealed bottles, which are carefully washed, and it is as sweet and pure as it is possible to make it. A trial, they say, will convince any one who doesn't know.

PRESENTED FLAG TO NORMAL SCHOOL

The Woman's Relief Corps, accompanied by the G. A. R., came in a body to the Normal assembly Wednesday morning to present the school with an American flag. The flag is a beauty, fifteen by twenty-five feet in size, the finest and largest one in the city. The members of the corps purchased the flag with money raised by their own efforts, and the gift is most thoroughly appreciated by the Normal school.

Mrs. Catharine Miller had charge of the program of the morning. Mrs. Black made the presentation speech, and with speeches by other members of the corps, the G. A. R. and Dr. Taylor, together with patriotic songs, made the exercises most appropriate.

In his speech Dr. Taylor invited the corps and the G. A. R. to be the guests of the Normal at their annual picnic, Tuesday, May 23, at which time the flag will be raised to its position on the Normal building.

MONEY AVAILABLE

ATTORNEY GENERAL SO DECIDES WHEN ASKED BY AUDITOR.

NORMAL WORK TO GO ON

Question Was Whether Anyone Other Than Mr. Marshall Could Be Paid From Appropriation.

Work will be resumed on the Normal building this week, and it will be completed in a very short time. Cook, Cummins & Dawson, who were employed to advise the board of regents with respect to contracting for the completion of the work outside of the Marshall contract, which has been abandoned by Mr. Marshall, Tuesday evening received a letter from Attorney General Major, in which it was held that the money appropriated by the state is available for the completion of the work.

The appropriation contained the name of Mr. Marshall in such a connection that the state auditor raised the point as to whether the money could be used to pay any other contractor than Mr. Marshall. The auditor declined to pay out the money without an opinion from the attorney general. The opinion of General Major was to the effect that the money is available for the work regardless of who does it, and was in accord with the conclusions of Messrs. Cook, Cummins and Dawson.

The contract for finishing the building was given to the St. Joseph Construction company, and they were notified at once by President Blagg of the board of regents to commence work.

The auditorium in the new building will probably be the first thing the workers will take up.

It will take probably until July 1 to entirely finish the building.

After games and luncheon, Miss Montgomery was presented a cut glass olive dish and fork.

Twentieth Century May Party.

The last general meeting of the year for the Twentieth Century club at the home of Mrs. W. A. Rickenbrode Tuesday afternoon was one of the best in the club's history, while the May party that followed the business session was indeed beautiful. The living rooms and dining room were decorated with wild crab apple boughs in full bloom, the buffet was banked with small baskets of violets, while the den was a bower of lilacs, arranged in baskets, and it was in this charming atmosphere that the new president, Miss Clara Bellows, began her duties. After an address by Mrs. E. G. Leake on "The Parent and the School," and a paper on the same subject by Mrs. O. C. Hanna, both of them excellent, the general discussion was led by Mrs. W. H. Crawford, in which nearly all took part. During the business session three new members were voted in, Mrs. W. C. VanCleve, Mrs. R. L. McDougal and Mrs. C. C. Hellmers. The president gave a splendid inaugural address, and announced her standing committees for the year as follows:

Program—Mrs. M. J. Honnold, Mrs. G. H. Colbert and Miss Emma Lee Taylor.

House committee—Mrs. Charles Jackson, Mrs. J. F. Montgomery and Miss Della Grems.

Membership—Mrs. G. B. Holmes, Mrs. Joseph Jackson, Jr., and Miss Jessie Parcher.

The committees to act as judges in the club's flower contest this summer for the prizes offered for the best flower bed were also announced and are as follows:

First ward—Mrs. O. C. Hanna, Mrs. R. F. Hamblen, Mrs. T. L. Wilderman.

Second ward—Mrs. Leslie Dean, Mrs. R. S. Braniger and Miss Laura Hawkins.

Third ward—Mrs. C. C. Corwin, Mrs. W. F. Smith and Mrs. Ralph Eversole.

Fourth ward—Mrs. Berney Harris, Mrs. Will J. Toel and Mrs. J. W. Ray.

After the club meeting, the hostess and retiring president, Mrs. W. A. Rickenbrode, with her corps of officers—Miss Donna Sisson, vice president; Miss Jessie Parcher, recording secretary; Mrs. T. L. Wadley corresponding secretary; Mrs. D. J. Thomas, treasurer, and Mrs. M. M. Deming, parliamentary censor—took charge of the social features, the club colors prevailing through it all. Strawberries were served in white baskets, the handles tied with lavender ribbons, on plates covered with strawberry leaves and blossoms, and white cake on tiny plates with a bunch of violets. After lunch each guest gave a toast to the new president—and they were toasts worth while, too—Miss Bellows responding to each. After the refreshments the new president, wearing a beautiful robe of white, was escorted to the veranda by Mrs. M. M. Deming, dressed as a page and bearing a wreath of white immortelles on a satin pillow, where she was crowned queen of the club by the retiring president in a parody on Tennyson's "May Queen." The queen then led the way to the May pole on the lawn by a pathway strewn with flowers by the club, where they wove the ribbons in lavender and white around the pole to music on the piano by Miss Jessie Parcher. After much gaiety and laughter all returned to the veranda, where punch or iced buttermilk was served as desired, the latter from a stone jar, in steins. Then all departed, wishing the hostess many more such May days.

REMOVED THE FURNITURE

In Their Periodical Separations Mrs. McCool Took Everything Loose About the Place.

A divorce suit was filed in the circuit clerk's office Wednesday morning by Shinabargar, Blagg & Ellison, attorneys for Daniel W. McCool against Sarah A. McCool. Mr. McCool is a former resident of Maryville, but is now in business at Skidmore.

The petition states that they were married August 19, 1905, in Nodaway county and lived together until June 1, 1906, when the defendant, wholly disregarding her duties as the wife of the plaintiff, has subjected him to such indignities and to such cruel treatment as to render his condition intolerable, and has been guilty of such barbarous treatment as to endanger his life. The petition goes on and says that without just cause or excuse the defendant packed all the movable household goods, including silverware, linen, bed clothes, to Kansas City, where the defendant established her residence.

On February 1, 1907, the petition alleges, the defendant returned to the plaintiff's place of residence at Elmo, and the plaintiff fixed up a nice residence, and on May 1, 1907, the defendant again left and went to Kansas City, taking with her movable household goods and other things. After a four months' absence, the petition states, the defendant returned to live with the plaintiff, and on March 25, 1911, for a third time she left for Kansas City and took with her household goods, sewing machine and other things amounting to $300 in moey.

The aggregate value of the movable household goods, silverware and other things taken by the defendant, the petition claims, will amount to over $1,100.

On one occasion in Skidmore, in March, 1911, the defendant came to the plaintiff on the street with a loaded revolver, and in the presence of a business associate, threatened plaintiff's life, the petition alleges.

The suit will come up at the June term of court. Mrs. McCool is now living in Denver, Col.

HOUSE MEMBERS ARE KEPT BUSY

Statehood for New Mexico and Arizona Up for Consideration.

WOOL SCHEDULE IS DISCUSSED

Hearings on Canadian Reciprocity Bill Resumed and to Be Followed by Consideration of the Farmers' Free List Measure.

Washington, May 10.—Statehood for New Mexico and Arizona held the attention of the house. Reports were received from the committee on resolutions of inquiry and the committee on territories, which met early in the day, approved the subcommittee's report, recommending statehood for both territories after they shall have voted on certain constitutional amendments.

Arizona is asked to resubmit the recall provision of its constitution, voting on an amendment which eliminates the judiciary. New Mexico is asked to vote on an amendment making its constitution more easily amendable. The joint resolution reported by Chairman Flood of the committee on territories will be called up later in the week.

Inquiries and investigations also kept members busy. Chairman Henry of the committee on rules was ready to call up the report providing for an inquiry into the United States Steel corporation and to report the recommendation of the Hardwick resolution for an investigation of the American Sugar Refining company and all other manufacturers and refiners of sugar.

Chairman Ashbrook of the committee on expenditures in the postoffice department was instructed to call up its report, recommending the adoption of the resolution of Representative Saunders (Va.) to ascertain the outside business affiliations and political activity of postmasters.

The military affairs committee took up the Gardner resolution, directing the secretary of war to inform congress regarding army shoe contracts.

Discussion of the wool schedule was general about the capitol. Democrats of Ohio and Massachusetts talked of conferences to poll the delegates on the issue of free raw wool.

The senate finance committee continued its hearings on the Canadian reciprocity bill. After concluding the hearings the committee will take up the farmers' free list bill. Farmers, as in the hearings on the reciprocity bill, will be prominent in the free list bill hearings. Next Monday has been set aside for cattlemen, particularly from Texas, to give their views on the measure. That probably will be the first regular hearing on the bill.

Stone Says It Is Murder.

Washington, May 10.—Characterizing the killing of Americans in El Paso and Douglas as "murders," Senator Stone of Missouri made a second speech of protest against the inactivity of the United States in the protection of its citizens along the Mexican border. He appealed to the committee on foreign relations to take up his resolution for the protection of Americans.

Big Japanese Town Burns.

Tokyo, May 10.—Word was received here that the town of Yamagata, capital of the Yamagata prefecture, was on fire and that 1,000 houses had been destroyed. These included the prefecture building, banks, schools and the court house.

Yamagata is thirty miles from Sendai. It is of considerable importance commercially and has a population of about 45,000.

EDITORS EXCHANGE VIEWS AND VISIT

WEEK AT UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI SCHOOL OF JOURNALISM A SUCCESS.

IS A PERMANENT FEATURE

Entertaining Addresses Made by Many of the Most Prominent Writers in the Country—State Scribes Royally Entertained.

(By H. H. Kinyon and F. W. Cooke, Students School of Journalism, University of Missouri.)

If there had been any doubt that editors' week at the University of of Missouri would receive the support and attendance to warrant a place for it among the permanent features of the School of Journalism, that uncertainty was easily dispelled in the opening days of the second annual gathering of newspaper men held in Columbia April 17 to 21, inclusive. In attendance by the newspaper men of the state, and in the scope of the work embraced, the meeting this year far surpassed that of last year.

Walter Williams, dean of the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri, called the first session to order Monday afternoon, April 17, at two o'clock in Switzler hall. After an address of welcome by W. S. St. Clair, mayor of Columbia, Ovid Bell of the Fulton Gazette started the practical work by leading in a discussion on "The County Weekly—Its Cost." An address on "The Ben Franklin Movement—What It Means to the Country Publisher," by Jens K. Grondahl, followed.

Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the New York Evening Post, gave the first general address Monday night in the auditorium of the Agricultural building, where all the night sessions were held. "The Duty of the Journalist" was his subject. "An owner who sells his opinions or submits to control of any kind is a menace to his profession," said Mr. Villiard. "The worst form of newspaper corruption that exists is the controlling of the editorial policy of the paper by the large advertisers. Honest journals welcome criticism, and profit by it, but they do not allow their editorial opinions to be influenced by the advertiser."

At university assembly at 10 o'clock Tuesday, Charles H. Grasty, editor of the Baltimore Sun, gave his opinions on the obligations of the newspaper man to the public. "The newspaper man today works chiefly from a sense of public obligation, and he must have firm convictions of his own," said Mr. Grasty. "In popular thought, an editor does what he pleases, but in reality his work is governed by an inflexible obligation to the people."

Following Mr. Grasty's address, woman as a journalist made her appearance on the program, and easily took a place as representative of high ideals in the profession. Mrs. C. A. Bonfils (Winifred Black) of the Kansas City Post pointed out the difference between the real reporter, the "hub" she called him, and the "dub," who doesn't know a good story when he sees one.

Miss V. A. L. Jones of the St. Louis Republic opened the afternoon session with a paper on "Journalism as a Career for Women." "Journalism is at once the very best and the very worst sort of a career for a woman," said Miss Jones. "It either makes or mars her. Either she grows and develops or she becomes 'a good fellow,' gay in her manner and frivolous in her conduct. Newspaper women can not rise to the highest positions in journalism, but they can graduate into the ranks of novelist and magazine writers."

The rest of the afternoon was taken up with discussions on "The Country Weekly, dealing with its cost, its news and its editorials. These editors participated in the discussion: C. L. Hobart, Holden Progress; Lewis Lamkin Lee's Summitt Journal; W. T. Jenkins, Platte City Landmark; C. L. Woods, Rolla Herald; C. J. Blackburn, Blackburn Record.

The session Tuesday night, at which Charles H. Grasty, editor of the Baltimore Sun, and Senator Lafayette Young, editor of the Des Moines Capital, were the speakers, promised to end in a joint debate on the question of the suppression of news. Mr. Grasty had said that an editor could not boost a friend for anything simply because he was a friend, neither could he suppress news reflecting on a friend because of that friendship. "I know my friend Grasty is right about the matter, but there are some things I will not print if my friends ask me to. If this news does harm, and not good, I always suppress it. I can not help it; I know it is not the right way, but I do it." Mr. Grasty's reply showed that the standards of the two editors were based on the same principles of fairness to all. He insisted, however, that the suppression of important news is the unpardonable crime of a journalist.

Casper S. Yost, editor of the St Louis Sunday Globe-Democrat, gave an address Wednesday morning on "The Sunday Newspaper." "The Sunday paper could not exist without the women," said Mr. Yost. "It is the women who make the advertising pay—who respond to the invitations of the big department stores."

Following this address came a discussion of "The Near City Daily" and "The Daily in a Small Town," which was led by William Southern, Jr., of the Jackson Examiner, Independence. Others who spoke on this subject were: N. G. Rogers, Trenton Republican-Tribune; J. G. Miller, Marshall Democrat-News; W. R. Painter, Carrollton Democrat; F. C. Naeter, Cape Girardeau Republican, and J. J. Witt Marshall Republican. F. A. Sampson secretary of the State Historical society, made a talk on society work.

A significant feature of the meeting of the Association of Past Presidents of the Missouri Press association was the presence of three ex presidents of the National Editorial association—B. B. Herbert, E. W. Stephens and Walter Williams. Mr Herbert was the originator of the National Editorial association and its first president.

Thursday was advertising day. E St. Elmo Lewis, president of the Association of National Advertising Managers of Detroit, and Thomas Balmer, advertising director of the Woman's World, Chicago, spoke in the university auditorium at the assembly hour. "The college graduate has become an important factor in the business world," said Mr. Lewis, "because there are so many of them now. With him there has come a new word into the language of business—that is, efficiency. Efficiency, not of the pocket book, but of the heart, mind and soul, is now the standard of measuring a man's success in life. It is thinking, not memory, that is paid for." "Education," said Mr. Balmer, "should be striven for, not because of the money it will enable one to earn, nor even because of the pleasure it affords one, but because of the good it will enable one to do for humanity."

"Routine news is the worst kind of news in the world," said George B. Longan, Jr., city editor of the Kansas City Start, in speaking on "The News as the City Editor Sees It." "It is the little, human personal touches that count. Get the feature, and bury the routine news," said Mr. Longan. "The Kansas City Star doesn't want its reporters to do wrong in gathering news," he went on to say; "it doesn't want a reporter to steal a picture; it doesn't want a reporter to be a detective. The reporter should be a friend of every man, woman and child. Too often he is regarded as a foe, but by preaching the doctrine of truth he will change this attitude of the people toward him and his paper."

"The New Ethics of Advertising" was the subject of an address by E St. Elmo Lewis at the afternoon session. "The man who prints a fraudulent advertisement," he asserted, "commits as great a crime as the faker who pays for it." He urged the publisher to remove the yellow taint from the advertising columns as it has been removed from the news columns of reputable journals.

"The Near City Daily" was discussed by Mitchell White, associate editor of the Mexico Ledger. Mr White outlined a constructive policy which had proved of distinct value in winning confidence and support in his community.

The advertising that succeeds in the future must be honest. That was the keynote of the address delivered Thursday night by Mr. Balmer. He said that the day of so-called cleverness in advertising had passed. Mr. Balmer believes that the advertiser who is to survive will be forced to have his business analyzed by an advertising expert.

The second annual conference of teachers of journalism was held Friday morning. Charles Dillon of the Kansas State Agricultural college presided at the conference. These instructors took part in the discussions: H. F. Harrington, Ohio State university; W. F. Scott, University of Illinois; F. W. Scott, University of Michigan; Frank L. Martin and Charles G. Ross, University of Missouri.

"Country Journalism as a Field for Women" was the subject of a paper by Mrs. H. J. Simmons of the Clarence Courier. "Country journalism is a new field for women," she said, "but it is nevertheless a productive one. In it she may not gain as much personal fame as she might working for a metropolitan paper, but she can exert a wide influence and make a good living at the same time. A good country paper is necessarily local if successful, and a woman is particularly adapted to get in personal touch with the people of her community, to know and understand them and to feel what will interest her readers."

W. J. Hill, editor of the Hannibal Courier-Post, led in a discussion of "Newspaper Policies." "A good newspaper in the hands of a good citizen is a blessing to any community," as Mr. Hill easily demonstrated in concrete examples of its opportunities. An independent policy in country newspaper work as well as in metropolitan journalism was the point of emphasis in the discussion. These editors took part: Walter Ridgway, Kirksville Express; Bart Howard, Joplin Globe; Henry Wallace, Wallace's Farmer, Des Moines, Iowa.

H. J. Blanton, editor of the Paris Appeal and president of the Northeast Missouri Press association, presided at the afternoon session Friday. There was an informal discussion of courses and methods in schools of journalism which had representatives present. Francis Stewart and J. C. Hutto, students in the School of Journalism of the University, outlined the advantages they were enjoying and their plans for active newspaper work.

"Magazine Journalism" was the subject of an address by Dr. Shaler Mathews, editor of The World Today, Chicago. "The thinking of today in the vital terms of life is done almost exclusively in the magazine. The haste attendant upon the production of the daily newspaper does not admit of creative thought to the degree enjoyed by the magazine writer. It is the serious article that gives the magazine its large circulation, by writers such as Ida M. Tarbell, Thomas Lawson, Lincoln Steffens, Ray Stannard Baker, and their kind."

"The great agricultural editor has not yet appeared," Mr. Wallace asserted in his address on "The Making of an Agricultural Editor." "There have been some who were near-great," said Mr. Wallace, "but they all lacked a good agricultural education. Among editors of this kind were Horace Greeley, Orange Judd, W. D. Hoard, 'Father' Clarkson, Secretary Wilson of the U. S. department of agriculture." According to Mr. Wallace, the reason these editors succeeded as well as they did was because they looked at public questions from the farmer's standpoint—the front porch or the barn door."

One of the most profitable features of editors' week was the opportunities it afforded for informal exchange of views and experiences. Approximately two hundred representatives of country newspapers in Missouri attended the sessions, from 58 counties.

Then there were the social events—automobile rides about the 15 miles of paved streets which Columbia has to her credit; a dinner at the Gordon hotel by the Commercial club; an informal reception by students of the School of Journalism at Switzler hall; an informal reception by the women in the School of Journalism at the Alpha Phi sorority house; military reviews on the campus of the university; concert by the university cadet band; a reception at the home of the Hon. E. W. Stephens, president of the Columbia Commercial club; a smoker at the Dana house by members of the Dana Press Club—and whole-hearted hospitality every day in the week to the visitors, singly and collectively.

A Decisive Clearing Of All Small Lots Of Wall Paper

We have gone through our entire stock of wall paper and selected all small lots in every grade and, to close them out quickly, we have marked them at extraordinary low prices, in many cases one-half.

This is NOT a sale of undesirable wall paper, it is simply a cleaning up of the odd lots that accumulate during a season's selling. As the best patterns sell first naturally they become remnants first—and this is a sale of the most popular patterns we have. There are patterns suitable for every room in the house and the price range is so comprehensive that every size purse can be accommodated.

10c White Moire Ceilings, 7c

Thursday, Friday and Saturday

In addition to the reductions on the cheap and medium grade papers we have included some of the higher priced patterns with cut out borders and marked them to half-price

One point worth remembering is the fact that there is enough paper of any pattern to cover an ordinary size room and in most cases there is enough for two rooms.

This is the greatest reduced price event in wall paper that we have ever held and it offers you the chance to secure some of the greatest bargains you have ever seen.

Commencing tomorrow, and for the two days following, these small lots of wall paper will be sold for about one-half price

Come early if you wish to secure the pick of this assortment. (basement)

Silage--The Every-day Farmer's Feed

By Howard Vaughn

A man of a very practical turn of mind recently remarked when speaking of the steer feeding business:

"Today it is not how many pounds of corn we can make the steer eat, but rather how few pounds can we feed him and still get reasonable returns? There was a time when corn was cheap, and the more we could get a steer to eat the greater the profits we could make from feeding. Sometimes, even now, we are inclined to forget that corn costs money and that there are other feeds that can be properly substituted for it, for a part of the ration at least.

Two problems are confronting the feeder who is attempting to make more economical use of the products on his farm for the production of milk or meat or work. The first is to get the animal to eat more of the crops grown, thereby reducing the apparent waste; the second, to feed the crops in such form that they will be more thoroughly digested by the animal, thereby checking a waste which, though not as apparent, is no less real than the one mentioned above. The British feeder has solved this problem to a great extent by feeding a large amount of roots. Under this system practically none of the crops of the land are wasted and the large proportion of succulence enables the animals to digest the concentrates more thoroughly.

Silage is one of the feeds that will make possible the more economical production of both meat and milk. Its use for horses has not yet been proved desirable, but its good qualities, especially from the standpoint of economy, have been definitely proved when it is used for the production of milk or meat. The stronghold of silage today is the dairy sections. I know of localities where one would insult a dairyman to ask him if he fed fodder to his cows. Not only this, but there is many a practical farmer in this state who would not trade a ton of silage for a ton of fodder. When we consider also that a good crop of fodder per acre is three tons and that silage will easily yield twelve tons on the same area, it is evident that the dairyman has a good reason for preferring the silage.

It is not an uncommon idea among farmers that silage is a feed only for specialized dairy herds, that it is not adapted for use on the average farm where only a few cows are kept and where one or two car loads of steers are fed every year. This impression is no doubt the result of the phenomenal results that silage has given when used for the production of milk and its extensive use by the best dairymen. It is however, merely an impression. The experience of those who have tried it is to the effect that it is a profitable feed for sheep and beef cattle as well as for dairy cattle.

[illegible] dollars is a conservative estimate for the cost of 100 pounds of gain on steers on winter feed. Seven dollars is the upper limit for the cost per hundred pounds gain with a number of feeders who are using silage as a considerable part of their ration. This is a saving of $3 on every 100 pounds of beef produced. Now, suppose you feed two car loads of steers (20 steers each) and make a gain of 300 pounds per steer. That means a gain of 12000 pounds, and that silage feeding in such a case would affect a saving of $360 in feed cost. One standard size silo of permanent construction can easily be erected for this amount, and will be good for many years after it has been paid for.

The work of experiment stations is showing silage to be profitable for the feeding of beef cattle. Mumford of Illinois fed some grade Hereford and Shorthorn steers, giving one lot silage and the other shock corn. Aside from these two feeds the rations were identical. The first lot made an average of 385 pounds of meat per acre, and the second lot 337 pounds, an advantage of over 10 per cent in favor of the silage-fed steers. Mumford's comment on the lots were:

"The silage-fed steers were in much better thrift and flesh at the end of the experiment than the shock-corn-fed steers."

The Indiana station compared silage with clover hay when fed in connection with a grain ration. The result of forty-two days' feeding showed a gain in value of $19.20 for the silage-fed steers and $16.76 for those fed clover, a gain of $2.44 in favor of the silage-fed lot. The Ontario station found that a "ration of silage and meal would fatten as cheaply and effectively as a ration of roots, hay and meal, and with less expenditure of labor."

If it were possible for every farmer to produce all the clover or alfalfa hay that he would need to feed his cattle, the relative advantage of the silo would be lessened. This would not be because silage supplies the food nutrients of clover, for it does not, but rather because silage is cheap in comparison with the food value that it contains. And after all this is the real test of the value of any feed. The most prosperous feeder does not care so much about the ton-price of a feed as he does about the amount of food nutrients it carries, and the ability of the feed to produce results. If we cannot produce some cheap and efficient roughage, such as clover hay, by all means let us cheapen the ration by the use of silage, and supply the protein in highly concentrated feeds, such as oil meal and cottonseed meal. The best combination we could get would be that of silage and clover. The following is an example of a good ration for feeding steers, being palatable, cheap and largely home-grown:

Feed.	Pounds per day.
Corn	12
Silage	30
Clover hay	5
Cottonseed meal	3

Silage is especially good for young stock and breeding cattle. Mumford, in his book on "Beef Production" says: "Where corn silage is available, it is undoubtedly one of the very best feeds to use as the principal part of the winter ration of beef breeding cows. A ration composed of 18 pounds of silage and 4 pounds of clover hay per 1,000-pound cow per day, together with all the straw the cows will eat, will not only keep cows from losing in weight during the winter season, but will cause them to gain at the rate of from one to one and a quarter pounds per head per day." "It's the best feed I have on the place" is the remark made by a farmer in this county who put up a silo last summer and is wintering his calves and dry cows on nothing but silage and clover hay. And his stock backed up his statement. That silage is one of the most profitable feeds is, therefore, beyond question. Its general use merely awaits a general recognition of its value.

The secret underlying the value of silage is revealed in the partial solution at least, of the two problems mentioned above. Silage prevents waste, and waste is the worst parasite that the farmer has to encounter. Results at the Texas experiment station showed that 52 per cent of corn fodder was rejected by the animals, while only 8-2 per cent of the silage was refused. These results may be slightly large in both cases, and yet every man who has used corn fodder knows that cattle are doing exceptionally well if they leave no more than one-third of the feed. When silage is cured in the proper manner they will not waste a pound in a hundred tons. This is a saving that cannot be overlooked by one who wants to get the best results from every foot of his farm.

There is yet another waste. Not only is there a smaller percentage of the fodder eaten by the animals as compared with silage, but of that which is eaten a smaller percentage is digested. Figures from the Pennsylvania experiment station show that in the three principal food nutrients, silage is almost 10 per cent richer than field-cured fodder. The digestible nutrients from one acre are:

	Silage lbs.	Fodder lbs.
Protein	233	202
Carbonhydrates	3,164	3,030
Fat	263	156

It has been proven by experiment and it is a point of common observation that animals fed on a highly concentrated ration with little roughage do not digest their grain feed as well as when they receive a smaller amount of concentrates and more roughage. Silage is a feed that greatly aids the animal in getting the most out of its feed. C. S. Plumb, writing from the United States department of agriculture, says: "Silage keeps the digestive system in a state of healthy activity, thereby aiding digestion."

The best way to feed silage is to mix it with the grain feed. Silage, being bulky, passes to the first stomach of the animal and is later rechewed. Concentrated feeds are not rechewed in this manner when they are fed alone. If the two are fed together the result is a rechewing of the entire feed, thus preparing the grain in smaller particles so that it can be more thoroughly acted upon by the digestive juices. It is this principle that the showman makes use of when he chops his hay and mixes his grain with it before he feeds his stock. The farmer would undoubtedly find it unprofitable to chop his, but silage has the same action and can be prepared more economically than any other similar feed.

The greater ease in hauling out the manure gives silage no mean advantage over corn fodder. The man who has had to tug away at a lot of preserved corn stalks in the manure pile will not be slow in recognizing the importance of this point. The labor in feeding silage is no greater than that of feeding the fodder. We have yet to find the man who would rather dig it out of the snow and ice in the winter than put it immediately into the silo in the fall.

The acreage necessary for filling a silo of given capacity will, of course, depend upon the nature of the soil. From nine to fifteen tons per acre of silage can usually be grown, ten tons being a fair crop.

ADMINISTRATION IS ALARMED

Washington Officials Admit Mexican Situation is Serious.

REVOLUTION IS SPREADING.

Colonel Steever Sends Messages Telling of Americans Being in Danger. Senator Stone Would Use Troops to Protect American Citizens.

Washington, May 10.—There were enough developments in the Mexican tangle in Washington to complicate still more a situation that even official advisers of President Taft are now willing to admit is alarming. From United States consuls and other sources the president and the state department heard that the revolution is spreading and from news dispatches and from Colonel Steever, in command at El Paso, they received bulletins telling of the fight that is endangering United States citizens on this side of the boundary.

Senator Stone of Missouri urged intervention in Mexico and said the Americans were being "murdered."

Representative Sulzer of New York, chairman of the house committee on foreign affairs, reiterated his conviction that the United States must not intervene.

Colonel Steever informed the president that he would permit the wounded of both the federal and the insurrecto armies to be brought into the United States.

Discussed in Senate.

The danger to American lives as a smouldering, the postoffice and sevresult of the revolution in the Mexican republic was again the subject of sharp controversy in the senate. The killing of several citizens in El Paso as the result of the battle in Juarez was the immediate provocation.

Senator Stone again urged the use of United States troops to protect Americans, and changing his attitude toward the president's attitude, practically charged him with playing a game of bluff in sending troops to the front.

Senators Bacon (Ga.), Work (Cal.) and other senators replied, commending the attitude of the president in advocating a conservative course.

Bacon contended for the right of the Mexican combatants to pursue their war even though American lives should be incidentally endangered.

COAL CLAIMANTS WANT TIME

Demands Are Presented to Secretary Fisher and the Land Office.

Washington, May 10.—Complaint was made by attorneys for the Cunningham Alaskan coal land claimants, arguing before Secretary Fisher and the land office tribunal, that they were not being given sufficient time to present their cases fully.

Secretary Fisher retorted that E. C. Hughes had presented in behalf of the claimants a brief 200 pages in length, and that his oral arguments had been the same as those contained in the brief.

Mr. Hughes announced informally that if the decision of the commissioner and the appeal to Secretary Fisher is unfavorable the case will be carried to the supreme court of the United States, provided the decision is open to any charge of misinterpretation of the law.

AN OLD-TIME PRESCRIPTION

in a modern product. From time immemorial sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost every one knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair and making it grow.

In olden times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready to use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. The Wyeth Chemical Company of New York put up an ideal remedy of this kind called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy and authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle and is recommended and sold by

Koch Pharmacy.

CATARRH DOCTOR

Cures Catarrh, Acute or Chronic or Money Back.

Would you pay one dollar to rid yourself of disgusting catarrh?

Then go to Orear-Henry Drug Co. today and ask him for a Hyomei outfit and you will not only engage, but you will own outright a little catarrh doctor that has cured more cases of catarrh than all the catarrh specialists on earth.

In the $1.00 box which contains the Hyomei outfit, you will find a little hard rubber vest pocket inhaler.

Into this inhaler you pour a few drops of Hyomei. Then all you have to do is breathe through the little inhaler, either through the nose or the mouth, according to where the catarrh is located.

When you breathe HYOMEI you breathe a powerful yet soothing, antiseptic air, which as it passes over the inflamed and germ ridden membrane penetrates every fold and crevice and destroys germs completely.

Stomach dosing never used catarrh, sprays and douches always fail; and why? because they don't get where the germs are, and as catarrh is a germ disease you must kill the ger[illegible] before you can cure catarrh. [illegible]OMEI is guaranteed by Orear-H[illegible] Drug Co. and by druggists everyw[illegible] to cure catarrh, coughs, colds, [illegible] and sore throat.

Right Principles of Teaching

Are as necessary in the study of Music as in any other branch of education. In this school are teachers who have spent years of hard study in preparation, and who have learned as much more in the school of experience. Those who enroll their children for study with any of the instructors in the Maryville Conservatory of Music may be sure that they will have the most careful individual instruction according to the most modern methods. In addition to this the benefits derived from the pupils' recitals and other classes are very important. Pupils from the country who miss lessons on account of weather or sickness will not be charged for same. Call at the studio at any time, or send for catalog to P. O. LANDON, Director.

REBELS SET FIRE TO JUAREZ

Entire Town Seems to Be Ablaze.

CITY IS NOW BESIEGED

Government Forces Fortified in Six Strongholds.

REBELS HOLDING PART OF TOWN

Buildings Burned in Attempt to Smoke Out Defenders.

El Paso, Tex., May 10.—Fire in Juarez broke out anew this morning. The entire town seems to be ablaze. The Mexican Northwestern freight depot, the Mexican Central passenger depot and the city market place are burning.

A strong wind is blowing and the flames are near the church where the federals are barricaded. An exchange or rifle shots was heard.

El Paso, Tex., May 10.—What was perhaps the fiercest battle of the Mexican revolution was fought at Juarez, across the Rio Grande, but without result. Both federals and insurrectos are resting on their arms, ready to resume the battle.

At least five people have been killed on the American side of the line since the skirmishing began and about fifteen have been wounded, while the loss on the battlefield is variously estimated at from thirty to sixty dead on both sides and about seventy-five to one hundred wounded.

Fifteen insurrecto wounded already have been brought to the American side, but more are believed to be lying far within the town. General Navarro agreed to stop the firing while the insurrecto wounded were being removed.

Battle All Day.

All day the battle raged, the insurrectos swarming through the streets of Juarez and meeting the heavy fire of the federals with an equally vigorous volley of musketry. The rebels claim the town and while it is true that they actually control more territory than do the federals, the position of the government forces is so well fortified that it is well nigh impregnable.

The strength of the federal position is largely due to the fact that the rebels are scattered. If the rebels were lined up in battle formation they probably could storm the federal stronghoids, which apparently consist of just six places—the barracks, the church, the theater, the school house, a hotel and the customs house. But the insurrectos suspect, and not without some degree of certainty, that a detachment of nearly 300 federals, with a machine gun, is concealed somewhere in town unknown, and they are hesitating to move in close formation for fear of a rear or flank attack.

Rebels Force Fighting.

The rebels forced the fighting in the face of the deadly fire of the federal machine guns. They dared not gather in too great number for an attack upon the federals, because the artillery of General Navarro many times demonstrated the accuracy of their range when they shelled adobe houses behind which insurrectos had sought protection a half a mile from Juarez, while skulking along the river front.

Many deeds of bravery on the part of the insurrectos were witnessed from the American side of the line. An actual view of the fighting in the streets of Juarez showed the insurrectos as more than holding their own.

Set City Afire.

A fire started by the insurrectos filled the streets with clouds of suffocating smoke. The fire is still smouldering, the postoffice and several adjoining buildings being in ruins.

Juarez look as if a hurricane had struck it. Wires are suspended from jagged telegraph poles and the streets are filled with plaster, adobe debris, window glass and splinters. Signs and awnings are punctured with holes. Many a brick building has a hole in it and not a few of the adobe houses of the town are without roofs.

The terror stricken residents of the town were under cover all day and many were injured by the hail of bullets.

Few American Wounded.

Bullets continued to sing across the Rio Grande to the American side, but the casualties were few, owing to the efforts of the United States troops, who have kept sightseers several hundred yards from the river front.

There are many sorties during the battle, the rebels maneuvering about to draw the federals from their fortifications. The mortars of the government troops kept up a deafening fire for several hours, but without any effect other than to prevent the rebels from swooping down upon them from the foothills west of Juarez.

The insurrecto artillery proved of little value and the revolutionists wrought more destruction while within Juarez by tossing dynamite bombs about wherever they thought federals were concealed than by their cannon. One of these bombs is believed to have set the postoffice on fire.

General Francisco I. Madero, Jr., leader of the rebels, observed the progress of the battle from a distance. He used a powerful pair of field glasses and not infrequently gave shouts of exultation at the advancing insurrectos.

While General Navarro is said to have sufficient ammunition and provisions to hold out at least a week against the kind of attack the rebels made, the rebels, it is said, are able to harass Navarro for that length of time.

DIETZ CONDUCTS OWN HIS DEFENSE

Motion for Discharge of Prisoner is Overruled by Judge.

Hayward, Wis., May 10.—John Dietz began his defense at the opening of court in the trial of himself, his wife and son, Leslie, for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Oscar Harp.

The first move was a report that the court discharge all three defendants on the ground that their guilt had not been proven beyond a reasonable doubt. Judge Reid asked if there were any arguments.

Dietz, addressing the court, said it had been admitted by two deputies that they could have fired the fatal shots. He added that one man's body would not have stopped and battered a full metal case bullet. The court denied this motion and then Dietz moved the discharge of the jury, declaring that they might be persecuted by the lumber trust if they rendered a favorable verdict. The motion was overruled.

The defense began its showing with the testimony of Michael Haverty, a settler who lives near the Dietz farm.

SUPREME COURT IS DIVIDED

Judges Differ on Whether All Roads Shall Run Passenger Trains Daily.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 10.—The supreme court was equally divided on the law which requires railroads to run daily passenger trains on all lines in Missouri. A special judge was ordered to try the case.

The court for a second time upheld the St. Louis billboard ordinance, which gives the city the right to regulate billboards.

Pays $30 to Hear Parrot.

Atlanta, Ga., May 10.—Mrs. W. H. Wall of Atlanta, while on a visit to Cincinnati, paid $30 for use of the long distance telephone to converse with her pet parrort, which was pining at Atlanta. When her mistress spoke Polly responded. She talked quite freely, becoming garrulous in fact, and seemed to enjoy the conversation.

Mrs. Kellogg of Kansas Is Dead.

Emporia, Kan., May 10.—Mrs. Lyman Beecher Kellogg, one of the first women admitted to the Kansas bar and a widely known clubwoman, died at her home here, aged sixty-one years. She was a daughter of Rev. D. P. Mitchell, in 1878 nominated governor of Kansas by the National Greenback party.

Big Boned Poland Chinas

Am now offering for sale a few choice boars and gilts of last September and October farrow. They are sired by my great boar, Pawnee Pete, who was 2 years old April 3d, and weighs over 800 lbs. in rather thin flesh, and has 11-inch bone. These pigs have extra heavy bone and great length, are in fine thrifty growing condition (not fat), and weigh from 180 to 250 lbs. Write me for prices, and please mentio this paper.
